Quigg Golden has successfully delivered the Law and Contracts Management Course for Ten years. Those who undertake this course get a head start on their peers and an insight into the practical and legal administration of construction and NEC Contracts.

Quigg Golden specialises in contract law, procurement, contract disputes and the NEC suite of contracts. Every day we see the problems that arise from failure to properly manage NEC and other standard form contracts.

"The Law and Contracts Management course is perfect for those who either have an interest in contractual issues or require additional support in the proper and informed use of the NEC3 contract. It is a well balanced course that prepared us for module 1 and 2 examinations and gives a good footing for progress en route to becoming an adjudicator/arbitrator. The course content and lecturing standard is excellent and well thought out. The course is also very enjoyable and taught in a relaxed atmosphere. I would certainly recommend this course for Engineers looking to benefit from an extra piece of legal knowledge."
