

Managing your Consultants

15:30 - 17:30

27 February 2019

Quigg Golden Belfast

Evening seminar

Frequently the consultant on a project will be the first outside member of the contract team to be procured and will be involved until well after completion; having a major impact on the outcome of the project as a whole.

We are seeing more and more "Professional Services" procurements rolling Design and Project Management services into single contracts.

This has obvious benefits for an employer but what are the draw backs and how do you manage the project manager?

This seminar will outline best practices for procuring and managing consultants from the employer's viewpoint.

Who should attend?

This course is aimed at anyone who engages or manages consultants to provide design and/or project management services.

About us

Quigg Golden are leading specialists in the field of construction and procurement law. Our team of legal, construction and procurement professionals (many dual qualified) provide a comprehensive service for contentious and non-contentious construction and procurement matters.
